ABOUT OUR PROGRAM

Reproductive Endocrinology and Infertility is a division of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center. Our IVF program is comprised of highly skilled professionals including: physicians, nurse practitioners, nurses, embryologists, a clinical social worker and other health care professionals dedicated to providing you with advanced infertility care and treatment. It is our experience that this is best accomplished by a team approach, working in collaboration with you and your partner to develop an individualized treatment plan. We encourage you to participate in this ongoing process.

WHO IS "THE TEAM"?

As you progress through your cycle, you will see some or all the various team members. The IVF Coordinator is your contact person, and if necessary, she can put you in touch with other team members. YOU are the focal member of the team, so communication between you and the rest of the team is VITAL. Many couples/individuals find advanced infertility treatment to be unusually stressful, often associated with anxiety, frustration and disappointment. Our experience has shown that open communication between you and the rest of the team is imperative, and we encourage you to discuss any concerns with us.
